Editorial By Alex. H. Washburn

CONGRESS adjourned Friday morning and the next few months will tell whether President Roosevelt's emergency program is going to lift the nation back to the highway that leads to prosperity.

It is possible for government to put business on the right road—but when it comes to actually traveling that road, business must do the job alone.

The late congress is a good example of the sound governmental theory our forefathers worked on when founding this nation. They recognized that government is at heart political—and they provided the congress as a battleground for politics and the compromise so necessary in a self-governing nation. But our forefathers also recognized that the people's business, the art of earning a living, is founded not in politics but in economics—and they established the presidency as the people's economic power superior to the political congress.

Thus, in every great emergency—whether a war against a foreign enemy or a war against a domestic depression—it is provided by the constitution that the president shall be "king for a day."

We speak lightly of a "dictator." It is not that at all. It is merely the demonstration of the true strength of our government, which is a free democracy in normal times, and a dictatorship in times of emergency when the emergency demands a one-man rule.

Mr. Roosevelt, trained through generations to think and act as a true American, has exercised his great emergency power about as 87 per cent of the American people would have him exercise them.

The emergency will pass. The president will shed his arbitrary powers. Congress will come to life again, filling the air with oratory and dispute and then we shall know happy days are here again.

Saturday The Star is closing a prize-letter contest in which there have been surprisingly few entries to date. If a newspaper dippended on letters to the editor to reflect accurately what it is generally thought about its policies, the answer would not necessarily be inaccurate—it would simply be a great silence.

A few people do write to the newspapers. But they are not a drop in the bucket compared with the Gallup-Fortune daily circulation. Every newspaper editor knows that the majority of letters are written by lawyers, doctors, secretaries of country societies, and others trained or accustomed by practice to take up their pen and write.

But the thought of writing makes the majority of our people bite the end of a pencil and stare off vacuously into space.

I don't blame them. Writing's a chore to them. Perhaps the reason I took up writing was because I got tired of picking stone off a side hill Northern farm. Every shoe-maker to his own last.

And the point I wish to make is that with such a small percentage of our people accustomed to write, it is the object of a newspaper editor to represent the unrepresented portion of the population. We therefore often appear low and vulgar, and come into conflict with the legal and clerical and cultured elements of our times.

The purpose of the press is to remind the upper crust that behind it lies millions of unrepresented and voiceless citizens.

And how well a paper represents the unrepresented, is reflected by its circulation. The Star is for the fifth year showing a consecutive gain in cash from subscriptions—a rather remarkable record considering these times.

XXX

That reminds me of what William Allen White, great editor of the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette, wrote about newspapers as compared with the radio:

"If the newspapers were closed in a week the radio would have sowed such a crop of rumors and the memory of them would have distorted the reports so fearfully that the whole country would be a seething mass of wriggling serpentine rumors of malice, error and delusion. The radio is a supplement the newspaper is good . Of course the radio precedes the newspaper often by hours but the radio is never a substitute for a newspaper any more than a first-aid dressing is a substitute for a square meal."

Public Ownership of Power System Success in Canada

2,000 Municipal Plants Have Blazed Way in United States

Private Power Keeps Capital High—Public Plants Write It Off

Editor's Note: This is the fifth of six stories on Power, its vice and its significance as a national issue to every citizen.

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — Public ownership and operation of power plants is no longer a theoretical question, discussed with fervor at Socialist rallies and with horror at dinners of the Chamber of Commerce.

It is a fact. More than 2000 city-owned plants are already in actual operation in the country. Most of them are small, but they include cities like Seattle, Tacoma, Los Angeles.

Public ownership enthusiasts assert that there are 84 cities in the United States which levy no taxes, but pay for their other municipal functions with profits from municipal water, gas and electric plants. About 3 per cent of the water power of the country is now municipally produced.

The federal government is already operating 11 hydro-electric plants through the Reclamation Bureau. Now the experiment at Muscle Shoals, and pending development of the St. Lawrence, Colorado and Columbia rivers have given new life to the government ownership movement.

Lobbies Pro and Con

During the last session the National Electric Light Association maintained a lobby in Washington. The public ownership people were not without lobbyists, too. The League for Industrial Democracy, Public Ownership League, and People's Legislative Service actively carried on the fight for municipal ownership and eventual public ownership. These people feel that Muscle Shoals may be a turning point in their long fight.

Judson King, head of the Popular Government League, is one of these champions who believes we are entering on a period when the public ownership idea will grow mightily.

In jubilant mood the day after the Muscle Shoals bill was signed, King told the writer, "Nothing can stop the public ownership movement now. The power lobby's insistent glacial-like force of a plan that amortizes its capital will sooner or later force out of business the private boys who have either a permanent level of capital on which charges must be paid by users eternally, or even a rising scale of capitalization through successive waterings."

King referred to the provision of most public projects which insures part of the profits being held back each year in a fund to pay off eventually the bonded indebtedness, leaving the project debt-free, and thus

Germany Demands African Colonies Be Returned Her

Hugenberg Presents Reasons to Conference at London

FEELING IS BETTER

U. S. Promise of Review of Debts Soothes European Nations

LONDON, Eng. — (AP) Germany asked the world Friday for the return of her African colonial empire.

A memorandum prepared by Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, German minister of economics, for the economic committee of the world economic conference, said there was possible ways for increasing Germany's capacity to meet international debts:

1. By giving her back her African empire where large public works schemes could be carried through, or

2. By opening other new territories to "the people which has not enough space in which to live."

Debt Review to Help

LONDON, Eng. — President Roosevelt's consent to enter into negotiations looking to a reduction of the 4-billion-dollar war debt which Great Britain owes the United States produced a magical effect at the world economic conference Thursday.

British government officials and the press exhibited intense satisfaction and lavished praise on Roosevelt while delegates of all the 66 nations thawed perceptibly toward members of the American delegation. Even Ramsay MacDonald's reaction to President Roosevelt's concessions reflected here was a decided relaxation of hostility.

Agreement with the White House for virtual cancellation of the 11 billion dollar war obligations, with only here and there a cautious warning that congress might not accept a new settlement.

The joyful news from Washington for Europe smoothed the way for the American delegation in obtaining chairmanship of the monetary committee for James M. Cox and put the Europeans in humor for expediting work of the London gathering. Secretary of State Cordell Hull came out of the day's session glowing with hope and confidence.

"The most slgnificant thing about the conference proceedings thus far," he said, "was the unexpected abbreviation of discussions. We are now ready to proceed to business with a virtual unanimous agreement of leaders on the principles to be followed. Only the methods for carrying out the agreements remain to be worked out. I feel more confident of the success of the conference than ever before."

Discuss Stabilization

British and French central bank officials continued negotiations with American financial experts on stabilization of currencies. Paul Warburg, American expert, proposed a formula for temporary defacto stabilization for stated periods on the basis of the actual exchange levels, which at present would be slightly above $4 to the pound. The American group admitted they lacked authority from Washington, as a result of which negotiations are lagging.

Hope Brick Works Asks Rate Change

But Missouri Pacific Opposes Extension of New-Rate Area

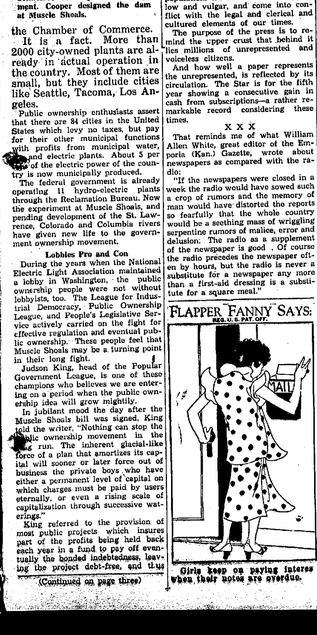
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Arkansas corporation commission Thursday took under advisement the petition of Hope Brick Works for extension of distance limits from 140 to 150 miles on special brick rates put into effect by the commission May 15.

The Missouri Pacific railroad and other carriers resisted the petition and sought an increase of rates fixed by the commission in the original order, which applies to building brick, common brick, fire brick, building and roofing tile and similar materials.

C. M. T. Camps Not to Take First Year Men

OMAHA, Neb.—General Johnson Hagood, Commanding the Seventh Corps Area, announced Friday that on account of the economy required, no basic, or first year, candidates will be trained in the Citizens' Military Training Camps this year. Only those who have had previous training in the C. M. T. Camps will be eligible to attend.

On account of the decrease in funds allotted for these camps, the quota for all camps are also reduced.



Col. Hugh S. Cooper, above, is said to be favored by President Roosevelt to have charge of the Tennessee river power development. Cooper designed the dam at Muscle Shoals.

U. S. TAKES INDUSTRY

Congress Gives in to Roosevelt, Adjourns

President Maintains His Economy Program by 45-to-36 Vote at Last Minute in Senate

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The senate adjourned sine die at 1:12 a. m. Eastern Standard Time, Friday morning. The house adjourned at 1:21 a. m.

After long hours of debate, the senate yielded to the wishes to President Roosevelt and the house and adopted a compromise veterans proposal, thereby paving the way for adjournment.

By 45 to 36, the senate adopted a conference report that its representatives on a conference delegation had agreed upon several hours before.

A few minutes later the house reconvened and adopted the conference report. A moment later it adopted a resolution for adjournment sine die and pitched it to the senate while representatives cheered.

President Roosevelt sent word to congress asking the two houses to waive the usual formality of appointing a committee to inform him of their readiness to adjourn. Later he sent letters to Vice President Garner and Speaker Rainey thanking the congress "for making possible, on the broad average, a more sincere and more wholehearted co-operation between the legislative and the executive branches of the United States government than has been witnessed by the American people in many a long year."

Speaker Rainey signed the independent offices bill that had been the vehicle of so much dispute and sent it to the senate, where Vice President Garner affixed his name.

Adoption of the sine die adjournment resolution was delayed a little in the senate by a speech by Senator Glass defending his record from an attack that Cutting had made earlier in the debate that preceded the veterans vote.

Following Long Debate

Long hours of debate had preceded the vote in the senate, during which senator after senator had either denounced the conferees for yielding to the cussion of the house or praised the compromise as the best solution that could be worked out in a difficult situation.

The question at stake in the dispute was whether veterans should be allowed more liberal compensation than the

De Valls Bluff May Be Revalued

State, Facing Receivership, Seeks to Scale Down Indebtedness

LITTLE ROCK.—Institution of a new petition and suit against the White River Bridge Corporation as a means of scaling down the cost of the DeValls Bluff toll bridge was forecast in a resolution adopted by the state Highway Commission Thursday.

Holders of bonds which the state assumed when the bridge was taken over from the corporation by the Highway Department in August, 1930, filed suit in Pulaski Chancery Court last week, asking that a receiver be appointed to collect tolls at the bridge and pay net receipts directly to the holders of bridge bonds.

The resolution adopted by the Highway Commission recited that the bridge was constructed prior to 1927 at a cost of $186,000 and that, through a consent order entered in the Prairie Circuit Court, August 18, 1930, the state was caused to assume payment of $464,000 in outstanding bonds in exchange for transfer to the state to title to the bridge.

Declaring that there is a question as to validity of the order because it was entered by consent and without a trial by jury, the Highway Commission requested the "legal authorities" of the state to take whatever steps are necessary to protect the state's interest in the suit now pending "to the end that the state may retain the ownership and possession of the bridge."

Influx of Orders Last 60 Days Speeds Up Hope Plant

WORKS FULL TIME

Mill Spending $325 a Day for Labor and Timber

Forty additional men have been given employment with J. R. Williams & Son, local lumber millers, Oliver Williams, one of the members of the firm, said Friday.

One hundred and thirty men are now employed cutting, hauling and milling timber, to fill an influx of orders which has been mounting each week for the past 60 days or more. Most of the additional men were put to work sawing logs and transporting them to the mill.

$325 Per Day

The firm is now spending about $325 per day for labor, timber and logs. A large number of logs are being bought from men who cut their own timber, Mr. Williams said.

"This is the first time in nearly three years that this lumber milling plant has been working full time, he said. While wholesale prices have advanced but slightly, market conditions have improved so greatly that better prices are expected shortly. The firm is attempting to lay in a large stock of lumber ready for shipment, but orders for carload quantities are coming in so fast that it is hard to keep ahead of them.

Rail Unions Will Ignore Wage Plea

Total of 22½ Per Cent Cut Not to Be Given Consideration

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Spokesmen for union employes of America's 291 class one railroads said Friday they would ignore the demands of their employers that they take a 22½ per cent wage reduction.

Notice was served on the brotherhoods Thursday that the companies would ask a 10 per cent reduction effective November 1, and asked union men to meet representatives of the railroads in Chicago July 12.

Railroad men are now operating under a 10 per cent cut, and the request would make a 20 per cent cut, and the 12½ per cent cut 'additional,' whether temporary or permanent not being indicated.

Child Program Is Held by W. C. T. U.

Mrs. D. L. McRae, of Prescott, Is Local Speaker Thursday

The annual child welfare program of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Hope was held at the home of Mrs. T. R. King, West Avenue C., Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. C. E. Tyler and Mrs. T. J. Boyett assistant hostesses.

The living room was bright with quantities of spring flowers, sweet peas and tuberoses predominating.

Mrs. D. L. McRae, of Prescott, was the principal speaker of the afternoon and quoted extensively from the Children's Charter, the measuring rod of many forward-looking movements in social reform. The charter stresses the fact that every child, regardless of race, creed, or color has an inherent right to be well born, well cared for and well educated.

The great responsibility of child training does not rest with the church or the school," said Mrs. McRae. "but with the home, and no home is what it should be—when one or both par-

Railroad Business Beating Last Year

D. L. Carter, Little Rock Official, Gives Report to Rotarians

"June railroad business on the Missouri Pacific is beating June of last year for the first time in this depression," D. L. Carter, assistant general freight agent, Little Rock, told Hope Rotary club Friday noon at Hotel Barlow.

"The upturn began after the national banking moratorium," he said. "Local freight business did not reach the peak of once, but which was an increase in connections—freight turned over to us by other roads.

"Then in May the local business began picking up—and in June it passed the record for the same period a year ago.

"The gain is largely reflected in the movement of lumber, mines and logs as a barometer of Arkansas business."

Mr. Carter was accompanied by M. E. Pickett, traffic representative, also of Little Rock, who spoke briefly.

Roosevelt Calls for Co-Operation on Recovery Plan

President Signs Industry Bill as the Congress Adjourns

PROFIT AND WAGE

Rail and Banking Measures Are Also Finally Enacted Into Law

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt moved to speed his recovery program into full co-operation Friday, within hours after signing of the final group of recovery bills sent to him by the congress in its closing hours early Friday morning.

The industry bill, signed by the president at the White House, was the first of three bills which gave him broad powers to put unemployed men and idle industrial and public money to work on the statute books a drastic revision of banking regulations and the railroad pension law.

The keystone of the co-operative program, the industrial control bill, was signed with a statement that it would have the whole-hearted co-operation of industry, labor and every citizen of the nation.

Its goal, he said, is the restoration of a reasonable profit to industry and living wages for labor, with the elimination of piratical methods and practices which have not only harmed honest business but also contributed to the ills of labor."

Jobs for hundreds of thousands of men are contemplated under the $4,880,000,000 billion-dollar public works provision.

Soon after signing the industry bill, the president signed the $114,180,000 Railroad Retirement and Railroad Unemployment Insurance bill.

5 Nations Pay, But 8 Default Debts

If Conference Is Wrecked, Debtors to Blame, Says Senator Borah

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Europe paid a little more than 8 per cent of its $114,180,000 war debt installment that fell due Thursday as other countries lined into line behind Britain to seek a review of the debt agreements from President Roosevelt.

Soon after midnight, the diplomatic representatives of debtor nations called at the State Department to report the decisions of their governments, until finally the line-up showed payments from five nations, defaults by five and probable defaults of three others.

One nation alone—Finland—paid in full the installment due.

In all, the payments of $10,000,000 from Great Britain, about $1,000,000 from Italy, a maximum of $100,000 from Czechoslovakia, $20,000 from Rumania, and the full payment of $146,000 from Finland—total $11,266,000.

France, Poland, Belgium, Yugoslavia and Lithuania defaulted, but made earlier by Hungary. Latvia's default is indicated.

Meanwhile, the debt controversy had inevitably echo in congress but this time it was a statement by Senator Borah, Idaho Republican, and publican, supporting President Roosevelt's action in receiving partial payments.

"If the economic conference breaks down it will be due to the refusal of the debtor nations," Borah said. "They seem determined to make the conference the whole thing.

"They may wreck the conference and if they do, the economic chaos and loss which will ensue will on be in excess of any benefit they gained or can ever be by cancellation of the debts."

The senator, ranking Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee asserted that Mr. Roosevelt's willingness to receive partial payments in no way altered the existing agreements. He said he was confident this government on its part would not grant any extensions.

Almost everybody has been aware of the fact that the influence of motion pictures on children is a serious force that ARE [illegible] in book form by Henry Holt and Company, under the recovery act, is a tough customer.

Now you can determine from watching questioning and hearing him as he organizes the greatest government [illegible] recovery and business, he is a hard-hitting straight-shooting realist with a mind that is quick to see the continuance of economic emergency but is grimly determined to give industry, labor and the public an even break.

At private gatherings of senators, business men and labor leaders the general has invariably "sold himself" at a high rating. He talks these [illegible] with facts and bald statements much as an officer might urge his men over the top in a crucial battle—with never a difficult lack of blank, spiritually and high promises.

His voice is raspy, his words sounds as if he were talking from one side of his mouth, though he actually has four teeth missing at the front. His mind works rapidly and well and he has an obvious contempt for generalities of the political phases of his enormous problem.

But he is unquestionably one of the most interesting characters who has appeared on this scene in a long time.

His language is picturesque. He coins the term "chiseling fringe" for those sweatshopping and price-cutting sections of industry which force down standards for the rest. Other bits from a recent Johnson conversation: . . . "Everything was going to hell" . . . "public works is like shooting craps" . . . "this is no hooey" . . . "no hot air promises" . . . "now we're coming to the gravy of this thing" . . . "the public isnt going to be gypped."

Recent prices rises make little impression on Johnson. He is out to restore purchasing power, through raising employment by a shorter work week and higher wages. If he doesn't, he thinks, there may be a real crash. The recovery act program is a gamble, he thinks—but a good gamble.

Douglas Kept Busy

The reason Lew Douglas, budget director, hasn't worked out the long-awaited government reorganization program is that he hasn't had time. It's a terrible job and Roosevelt has been making him work on nearly everything else that has come along.

The recent fuss about purchase of recreation camp kits probably would have been avoided if Douglas had had time to perfect a plan—on his desk for a month—for a government procurement system which he believes should save taxpayers between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000 a year.

Honors for the Generals

Chief of Staff Douglas MacArthur, who was reported to have delayed the rout of last year's bonus army until he could get his full dress uniform and who may soon be succeeded, has thoughtfully sent through amendments to army orders so that all "former chiefs of staff" will now be presented by a 17-gun salute when visiting army posts. Another regulation requires a 17-gun salute when they depart, to say nothing or receiving four ruffles and four flourishes from the drummer boys and rendition of the General's March from the band. Other changes also give former chiefs of staff additional honors.

Speech Picturesque

His language is picturesque. He coins the term "chiseling fringe" for those sweatshopping and price-cutting sections of industry which force down standards for the rest. Other bits from a recent Johnson conversation: . . . "Everything was going to hell" . . . "public works is like shooting craps" . . . "this is no hooey" . . . "no hot air promises" . . . "that guy has got to have all the authority there is under this act"—meaning the administrator, himself . . . "we could use all the units that this government is just lousy with all over town"—for [illegible] . . . "we can't put men in who'll get the pants tracked off 'em" . . . "now we're coming to the gravy of this thing" . . . "the public isnt going to be gypped."

Recent prices rises make little impression on Johnson. He is out to restore purchasing power, through raising employment by a shorter work week and higher wages. If he doesn't, he thinks, there may be a real crash. The recovery act program is a gamble, he thinks—but a good gamble.

Douglas Kept Busy

The reason Lew Douglas, budget director, hasn't worked out the long-awaited government reorganization program is that he hasn't had time. It's a terrible job and Roosevelt has been making him work on nearly everything else that has come along.

The recent fuss about purchase of recreation camp kits probably would have been avoided if Douglas had had time to perfect a plan—on his desk for a month—for a government procurement system which he believes should save taxpayers between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000 a year.

Honors for the Generals

Chief of Staff Douglas MacArthur, who was reported to have delayed the rout of last year's bonus army until he could get his full dress uniform and who may soon be succeeded, has thoughtfully sent through amendments to army orders so that all "former chiefs of staff" will now be presented by a 17-gun salute when visiting army posts. Another regulation requires a 17-gun salute when they depart, to say nothing or receiving four ruffles and four flourishes from the drummer boys and rendition of the General's March from the band. Other changes also give former chiefs of staff additional honors.

Mellon Kinsman Is Sued for Tax

Gulf Oil President Faces Civil Action for 2 Million Dollars

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(AP)—William L. Mellon, president of the Gulf Oil Corporation and nephew of Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the Treasury, was charged in a taxpayers' suit Wednesday with evading payment of $2,000,000 income taxes.

The suit alleges Mellon failed over a period of five years to include in his income tax returns, 75,000 shares of Gulf stock voted to him, the company says, for services to the company.

David A. Dickson, former special attorney for the senate banking and currency committee, who brought the action, declares the stock was valued at $8,625,000. Acting as a citizen, Olson asks recovery of twice the amount of the tax, or $4,000,000, plus $10,000 in penalties.

Under the law the commissioner of internal revenue "may pay an income tax case a reward not to exceed 10 per cent of the amount thereby collected or recovered. Payment of the reward is not compulsory.

The suit also brings in the name of Andrew W. Mellon, asserting that while he was secretary of the Treasury he was a director and member of the Gulf Company's 4,500,000 shares.

Mellon, who declined to comment upon the suit, has been active in Pennsylvania politics although he has held no elective or appointive office. He served for some time as chairman of the Republican State Committee.

The story deals with the marital difficulties of a woman who wants to continue success in the courtroom only to encounter tragedy at home.

Ralph Pate Will Pitch for Storks

Ace Right-Hander Returns to Home Town From Hugo

Ralph Pate, right-handed pitcher who early this spring left Hope Storks to join Hugo (Okla.) baseball team, has returned to this city.

Pate will play with the Storks the remainder of the season. He is scheduled to pitch here Sunday afternoon against Choc City. Because his parents urged his return here, Pate quit the Hugo team, Manager Lloyd Coop of the Storks said.

In announcing that Pate would pitch Sunday afternoon, Manager Coop added that Choc City has "one of the best teams we have met this season."

The Storks ran their string of victories to seven straight by defeating Nashville Wednesday afternoon at Nashville, 11 to 2.

The line-up for Sunday was announced as: Whitten, c; Pate, p; Coop, 1b; Sparks, 2b; Cook, ss; Crawford, 3b; Hinton, rf; Cargile, cf; and Wilkin, lf.

God night have made the earth bring forth
Enough for great and small, the oak
And the cedar tree,
Without a flower at all. Then, wherefore, wherefore, were they made,
All glad and rainbow hued, if light, all fashioned with supernal grace,
Joining day and night?
To comfort man, to whisper hope
Whene've his hope is dim; for whose
Love gave the flowers will much care for him."

Jesus Rises From the Dead

Weekly Sunday School Lessons

Text: Mark 16:1-11

The International Uniform Sunday School Lessons for June 18.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Member of the Congregationalist Board of Education.

The story of the resurrection of Jesus quickens the imagination as it stimulates the faith of the disciples. We cannot gain the full effect of the story except as we grasp the situation confronting the disciples in the crucifixion of Jesus and in the apparent destruction of their hopes.

Men and women had followed him, drawn by his teachings as well as by his life and character, confident in the fact that he had come to establish a kingdom of righteousness and truth that would overcome the kingdoms of the world and realize their highest spiritual ideals. They had witnessed the triumphal entry of Jesus into Jerusalem with the applause of the throng, the people crying, "Hosanna to the King coming in the name of the Lord" and throwing their garments in the way in their ecstasy.

Surely it must have seemed that the Messianic day had come, and all the deepest hope of devout Israel was about to be accomplished.

Then, suddenly, had come the reversal of all this hope, the apprehension of Jesus, his judgment before the council and before Pilate, his condemnation to death, and his crucifixion on Calvary. It was indeed a dark hour, and we can understand the despair of that people who said to their fellow disciples, "I go afishing." For him the alluring dream was over, and there was nothing but to go back to his fishing nets.

Here and there we have evidences of the gloom that had settled down upon the disciples in that hour of darkness. It was not only their bereavement in the loss of a friend, but the overthrowing of their hopes and aspirations and the dumbfounding of their faith.

Suddenly all was changed from gloom and despair. There came the note of joy and hope and the revival of faith in the assurance that Jesus really lived. Here in our lesson we have the story of the two women who came to the tomb of Jesus bringing spices for the anointing of his body.

Why them there appeared the divine visitant, assuring them that Jesus had risen and that his disciples would see him again in Galilee. Then there came the appearance of Jesus also to others, and the circumstances with two disciples on the way to Emmaus.

We are dealing with a miraculous event in the resurrection of Jesus. In the external facts is beyond proof or disproof, but we have the clear evidence of the experience that came to the disciples in the restoration of their faith, with the clear assurance that Jesus was not dead but living.

It changed life for them, and it can change life for us. We may not see the vision of the Risen Christ in the same form as the disciples saw him, but to disciples in age since this record was given there has come the assurance that Jesus is living because of the reality of his indwelling life and guidance.

CHILD PROGRAM

ents are 'alcoholic' addicts. Plato warned of the dangers of alcoholism and the clear thinkers of the Twentieth Century are likewise doing all in their power to educate humanity to the principles of right living, which includes adequate training along lines of temperate living.

The child's education is complete without a knowledge of the effects of alcohol and the National Education Association, Parent-Teacher organizations, the W. C. T. U., and kindred organizations are sparing no effort to disseminate this information to children and adolescents."

Miss Grace Abbotts, chief of the Children's Bureau, said, "The Eighteenth Amendment was a great protective legislative act of the century for the in-

ormous fee for this service."

Electric light and power companies now pay about $210,000,000 a year in taxes, which may prove more than the much-discussed beer tax.

Another factor that has held back the spread of public ownership in the United States is the widespread ownership of utility stock, a tendency which has been actively encouraged by the utilities themselves. The most recent figures are those for 1931, which show 3,161,000 individual stockholders in operating companies, of which 70,000 were employees and 1,000,000 workers. That does not include the tremendous number of individual owners of holding company stocks, a great number of bondholders, which is unknown. The number of all these classes of individual holders has probably increased since 1931. Thus literally millions of small citizens have a direct interest in the privately owned utility.

The vital requirement for a public-ownership project like that of Ontario is stated by the commission there. ". . . it can not be imposed on an unwilling community; it must be broad-based upon the people's will . . . unless there be responsible and qualified men ready to make sacrifices . . . unless competent technical assistance be employed under conditions which insure continuity of administration, and unless the people themselves are ready to back the project with their financial resources . . . " no program of public ownership can succeed.

NEXT: Muscle Shoals, the Pioneer. A project with a new conception, a new scope. What Roosevelt, Norris, Arthur Morgan and others predict for the future.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Roberts Barton

Almost everybody has been aware of the fact that the influence of motion pictures on children is a serious force that ARE [illegible] in book form by Henry Holt and Company, under the recovery act, is a tough customer.

Now you can determine from watching questioning and hearing him as he organizes the greatest government [illegible] recovery and business, he is a hard-hitting straight-shooting realist with a mind that is quick to see the continuance of economic emergency but is grimly determined to give industry, labor and the public an even break.

At private gatherings of senators, business men and labor leaders the general has invariably "sold himself" at a high rating. He talks these [illegible] with facts and bald statements much as an officer might urge his men over the top in a crucial battle—with never a difficult lack of blank, spiritually and high promises.

He looks the part of the traditional hard-boiled sergeant of marines. His voice is raspy, his words sounds as if he were talking from one side of his mouth, though he actually has four teeth missing at the front. His mind works rapidly and well and he has an obvious contempt for generalities of the political phases of his enormous problem.

But he is unquestionably one of the most interesting characters who has appeared on this scene in a long time.

Speech Picturesque

His language is picturesque. He coins the term "chiseling fringe" for those sweatshopping and price-cutting sections of industry which force down standards for the rest. Other bits from a recent Johnson conversation: . . . "Everything was going to hell" . . . "public works is like shooting craps" . . . "this is no hooey" . . . "no hot air promises" . . . "that guy has got to have all the authority there is under this act"—meaning the administrator, himself . . . "we could use all the units that this government is just lousy with all over town"—for [illegible] . . . "we can't put men in who'll get the pants tracked off 'em" . . . "now we're coming to the gravy of this thing" . . . "the public isnt going to be gypped."

Recent prices rises make little impression on Johnson. He is out to restore purchasing power, through raising employment by a shorter work week and higher wages. If he doesn't, he thinks, there may be a real crash. The recovery act program is a gamble, he thinks—but a good gamble.

Douglas Kept Busy

The reason Lew Douglas, budget director, hasn't worked out the long-awaited government reorganization program is that he hasn't had time. It's a terrible job and Roosevelt has been making him work on nearly everything else that has come along.

The recent fuss about purchase of recreation camp kits probably would have been avoided if Douglas had had time to perfect a plan—on his desk for a month—for a government procurement system which he believes should save taxpayers between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000 a year.

Honors for the Generals

Chief of Staff Douglas MacArthur, who was reported to have delayed the rout of last year's bonus army until he could get his full dress uniform and who may soon be succeeded, has thoughtfully sent through amendments to army orders so that all "former chiefs of staff" will now be presented by a 17-gun salute when visiting army posts. Another regulation requires a 17-gun salute when they depart, to say nothing or receiving four ruffles and four flourishes from the drummer boys and rendition of the General's March from the band. Other changes also give former chiefs of staff additional honors.

Mellon Kinsman Is Sued for Tax

Gulf Oil President Faces Civil Action for 2 Million Dollars

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(AP)—William L. Mellon, president of the Gulf Oil Corporation and nephew of Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the Treasury, was charged in a taxpayers' suit Wednesday with evading payment of $2,000,000 income taxes.

The suit alleges Mellon failed over a period of five years to include in his income tax returns, 75,000 shares of Gulf stock voted to him, the company says, for services to the company.

David A. Dickson, former special attorney for the senate banking and currency committee, who brought the action, declares the stock was valued at $8,625,000. Acting as a citizen, Olson asks recovery of twice the amount of the tax, or $4,000,000, plus $10,000 in penalties.

Under the law the commissioner of internal revenue "may pay an income tax case a reward not to exceed 10 per cent of the amount thereby collected or recovered. Payment of the reward is not compulsory.

The suit also brings in the name of Andrew W. Mellon, asserting that while he was secretary of the Treasury he was a director and member of the Gulf Company's 4,500,000 shares.

Mellon, who declined to comment upon the suit, has been active in Pennsylvania politics although he has held no elective or appointive office. He served for some time as chairman of the Republican State Committee.

Ralph Pate Will Pitch for Storks

Ace Right-Hander Returns to Home Town From Hugo

Ralph Pate, right-handed pitcher who early this spring left Hope Storks to join Hugo (Okla.) baseball team, has returned to this city.

Pate will play with the Storks the remainder of the season. He is scheduled to pitch here Sunday afternoon against Choc City. Because his parents urged his return here, Pate quit the Hugo team, Manager Lloyd Coop of the Storks said.

In announcing that Pate would pitch Sunday afternoon, Manager Coop added that Choc City has "one of the best teams we have met this season."

The Storks ran their string of victories to seven straight by defeating Nashville Wednesday afternoon at Nashville, 11 to 2.

The line-up for Sunday was announced as: Whitten, c; Pate, p; Coop, 1b; Sparks, 2b; Cook, ss; Crawford, 3b; Hinton, rf; Cargile, cf; and Wilkin, lf.

God night have made the earth bring forth
Enough for great and small, the oak
And the cedar tree,
Without a flower at all. Then, wherefore, wherefore, were they made,
All glad and rainbow hued, if light, all fashioned with supernal grace,
Joining day and night?
To comfort man, to whisper hope
Whene've his hope is dim; for whose
Love gave the flowers will much care for him."

Jesus Rises From the Dead

Weekly Sunday School Lessons

Text: Mark 16:1-11

The International Uniform Sunday School Lessons for June 18.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Member of the Congregationalist Board of Education.

The story of the resurrection of Jesus quickens the imagination as it stimulates the faith of the disciples. We cannot gain the full effect of the story except as we grasp the situation confronting the disciples in the crucifixion of Jesus and in the apparent destruction of their hopes.

Men and women had followed him, drawn by his teachings as well as by his life and character, confident in the fact that he had come to establish a kingdom of righteousness and truth that would overcome the kingdoms of the world and realize their highest spiritual ideals. They had witnessed the triumphal entry of Jesus into Jerusalem with the applause of the throng, the people crying, "Hosanna to the King coming in the name of the Lord" and throwing their garments in the way in their ecstasy.

Surely it must have seemed that the Messianic day had come, and all the deepest hope of devout Israel was about to be accomplished.

Then, suddenly, had come the reversal of all this hope, the apprehension of Jesus, his judgment before the council and before Pilate, his condemnation to death, and his crucifixion on Calvary. It was indeed a dark hour, and we can understand the despair of that people who said to their fellow disciples, "I go afishing." For him the alluring dream was over, and there was nothing but to go back to his fishing nets.

Here and there we have evidences of the gloom that had settled down upon the disciples in that hour of darkness. It was not only their bereavement in the loss of a friend, but the overthrowing of their hopes and aspirations and the dumbfounding of their faith.

Suddenly all was changed from gloom and despair. There came the note of joy and hope and the revival of faith in the assurance that Jesus really lived. Here in our lesson we have the story of the two women who came to the tomb of Jesus bringing spices for the anointing of his body.

Why them there appeared the divine visitant, assuring them that Jesus had risen and that his disciples would see him again in Galilee. Then there came the appearance of Jesus also to others, and the circumstances with two disciples on the way to Emmaus.

We are dealing with a miraculous event in the resurrection of Jesus. In the external facts is beyond proof or disproof, but we have the clear evidence of the experience that came to the disciples in the restoration of their faith, with the clear assurance that Jesus was not dead but living.

It changed life for them, and it can change life for us. We may not see the vision of the Risen Christ in the same form as the disciples saw him, but to disciples in age since this record was given there has come the assurance that Jesus is living because of the reality of his indwelling life and guidance.

ents are 'alcoholic' addicts. Plato warned of the dangers of alcoholism and the clear thinkers of the Twentieth Century are likewise doing all in their power to educate humanity to the principles of right living, which includes adequate training along lines of temperate living.

The child's education is complete without a knowledge of the effects of alcohol and the National Education Association, Parent-Teacher organizations, the W. C. T. U., and kindred organizations are sparing no effort to disseminate this information to children and adolescents."

Miss Grace Abbotts, chief of the Children's Bureau, said, "The Eighteenth Amendment was a great protective legislative act of the century for the in-

ormous fee for this service."

Electric light and power companies now pay about $210,000,000 a year in taxes, which may prove more than the much-discussed beer tax.

Another factor that has held back the spread of public ownership in the United States is the widespread ownership of utility stock, a tendency which has been actively encouraged by the utilities themselves. The most recent figures are those for 1931, which show 3,161,000 individual stockholders in operating companies, of which 70,000 were employees and 1,000,000 workers. That does not include the tremendous number of individual owners of holding company stocks, a great number of bondholders, which is unknown. The number of all these classes of individual holders has probably increased since 1931. Thus literally millions of small citizens have a direct interest in the privately owned utility.

The vital requirement for a public-ownership project like that of Ontario is stated by the commission there. ". . . it can not be imposed on an unwilling community; it must be broad-based upon the people's will . . . unless there be responsible and qualified men ready to make sacrifices . . . unless competent technical assistance be employed under conditions which insure continuity of administration, and unless the people themselves are ready to back the project with their financial resources . . . " no program of public ownership can succeed.

NEXT: Muscle Shoals, the Pioneer. A project with a new conception, a new scope. What Roosevelt, Norris, Arthur Morgan and others predict for the future.

Here and There

—Editorial By Alex. H. Washburn—

TELEGRAM TO GOVERNOR FUTRELL—The United Press informs us that Boyden Underwood, its Little Rock correspondent, was beaten up in the state capitol Saturday morning by four men who resented his authorship of the nepotism articles.

Underwood recognized at least one of his attackers as an employe of the State Revenue Department.

The newspapers of Arkansas which look to the United Press as one of the two world-wide wire associations for factnews, now look to you for exemplary action.

The beating up of press-association men who are only seeking the plain facts of governmental payrolls might happen in Hitler's Germany, Mussolini's Italy, or Machado's Cuba—but it doesn't happen in the United States without an investigation and swift punishment.

Muscle Shoals to Lead New Program of Public Ownership

TO FORBID POLITICS

Roosevelt's Idea Is Combined Private and Public Development

Editor's Note: This is the final story in a series of six on Power, its rise and its significance as a national issue to every citizen

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — The Muscle Shoals project definitely launches the United States government into paths it has never trod before. It is not mere government production and sale of power. It is regional and social planning on a scale that scarcely Russia itself has attempted.

There are details, too, of the Muscle Shoals act which mark out new paths. For instance, it provides that all members of the board (of the Tennessee Valley Authority) "shall be persons who profess a belief in the feasibility and wisdom of this act." No such provision has ever before been incorporated in a federal law. Hitherto the oath of administration has been considered sufficient.

But this is an attempt to insure unpathetic administration. Congress is not to be content to ask that this project be carried through by its friends. Senator Norris, "grandfather of the Muscle Shoals,' explained to the writer "We have seen similar legislation virtually nullified in the past by administrators who followed the letter of the law, perhaps, but who plainly did not believe in what they were doing, and thus did not give it a fair chance."

The Muscle Shoals act also contains severe penalties for allowing any political shot to creep into the distribution of its jobs. Directors are specifically forbidden to use their powers to "promote the interests, especially their interests. Wage rates may not be less than the prevailing rate in the locality as determined by collective bargaining agreements.

States, counties, municipalities and co-operative organizations get first call on any power produced. Corporate wealth and 'Southern has offered to buy all surplus power produced, and Senator Norris recent report that the government will not really build transmission lines and sell power itself, inasmuch as Commonwealth will distribute over its present lines "at rates that will give full recognition to any saving made by the government in the cost of generation." The act specifically permits building of such lines, however, and it appears likely that the government will do it.

But the really revolutionary side of the Muscle Shoals experiment is opened by the provision in the act for "surveys and general plans for said Tennessee basin and adjacent territory as may be useful to the Congress and the several states in guiding and controlling the extent, character and nature of development that may be equitably and economically advisable through the expenditure of public funds . . . all for the purpose of fostering an orderly and proper physical, economic, and social development of said areas." Which would seem to include practically anything.

Roosevelt's Aims

How far does President Roosevelt expect to go with public ownership? His own words in "Looking Forward" are the best guide: "Let us be clear at the outset that the liberty of individuals to carry on their business should not be abrogated unless the larger interests of the many are concerned . . . We need hold with those who advocate government ownership of all utilities . . .

"As a broad general rule, the development of utilities should remain, with certain exceptions, a problem for private initiative and private capital. But the exceptions are of vital importance.

"The natural hydroelectric power resources belonging to the people should forever remain in their possession."

Cox Runner-Up to State President

Polled Within 3 Votes of Winner in Druggists' Convention

John P. Cox, local druggist, was runner-up for president of the State Druggists association at the year's convention of that organization in Little Rock this week, it was revealed when Frank Ward and Mr. Cox returned to Hope Friday.

Although Mr. Cox had no knowledge that he was to be nominated for that office until just before the election, he received within three votes of the winner. Only two men were nominated in the contest. Friends of Mr. Cox stated they presumed he would be elected president a year from now, when the state organization meets in Texarkana, jointly with the Texas group.

This newspaper helped elect you. It helped carry Hempstead county 18 per cent for your candidacy. It has supported all of your programs.

It has criticized you on the score of nepotism only because DuVall Parkins, your own secretary, more than a year ago made nepotism a campaign issue with a speech denouncing Guy Freeling, secretary to Governor Parnell, because Freeling had placed his wife, his brother, and his brother's wife on the state payroll.

If minor job-holders are going to be permitted to intimidate the representatives of a non-partisan press association then the newspapers of Arkansas and you have reached the parting of the ways.

X X X

Repeal and anti-repeal candidates have filed for the right to be delegate from this county in the prohibition election July 18. It is an honorary job. Delegates have no voice. When they meet at Little Rock after the election they will vote unanimously for repeal, or against it, depending on the total vote in the state.

Your vote counts equally, whether it is cast in Hempstead, Pulaski, Union, or elsewhere. And therefore you should by all means vote.

Much of what you hear at church rallies, or read in the newspapers, is beside the point.

We aren't voting for or against whisky, July 18.

We are voting on the question whether Arkansas, knowing in advance that the 18th amendment has lost 11 consecutive states by overwhelming popular majorities, shall exercise her technical right to keep the amendment in the constitution, even though it be forever nullified, which it will be.

The question we are voting on, again is, whether we believe anything should be placed in the constitution except by unanimous consent.

We have tried to make a police agency of the constitution, but have only succeeded in breaking down respect for all law.

Now it's time to try something else.

X X X

This newspaper is against the saloon. We believe we can demand the repeal of the 18th amendment and still be as true an advocate of temperance as any man in town.

The fact is that the whole United States is against us, on the 18th amendment—and knowing that, it is better to vote for repeal now and speed the day when effective control will replace ineffective prohibition.

Wealthy Brewer Held for Ransom

William Hamm, St. Paul, Kidnaped—$100,000 Is Demanded

BULLETIN

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(AP)—Money or death, was the ultimatum laid down by the kidnapers of the millionaire president of the Theodore Hamm Brewing company who Saturday held William Hamm, Jr., a prisoner. Police withdrew from the case at the request of the family to patrol negotiations with the abductors, who have demanded $100,000.

ST. PAUL.—(AP)—William Hamm Jr., St. Paul industrialist, was kidnaped Thursday and is being held for $100,000 ransom, it was announced Friday night.

News of the kidnaping was withheld by officials in an effort to contact the abductors and bring about their arrest. When officials became convinced that such a contact could not be made immediately they decided to make known the abduction and enlist the aid of the public in apprehending the kidnapers.

Mr. Hamm is president and treasurer of the Theodore Hamm Brewing company, St. Paul, and son of the late William Hamm, local capitalist.

First news of the kidnaping was received Thursday by William W. Dunn, manager of Hamm's brewery. A telephone call to Mr. Dunn revealed the abduction. "We have kidnaped Mr. Hamm," said a voice. "You will hear from us later."

Friday Dunn received a note which said Hamm was being held for $100,000 ransom and that unless the money was paid Hamm would be killed. Attached to the bottom of the note was a postscript signed by Hamm, in which he urged immediate payment of the money.

The note was delivered by a taxidriver who told the police he was approached by a man Thursday night.

"This man told me," the driver said, "that he would give me $2 if I would

Boyden Underwood of U. P. Attacked by Crowd of Four

"Damn It, Tend to Your Own Business," Says Assailant

IS STATE EMPLOYE

Underwood Identifies One as From State Revenue Department

By United Press

LITTLE ROCK—(UP)—A fight in the rotunda of the state capitol Saturday morning climaxed the resentment built up against a series of United Press stories exposing nepotism in the state government.

An unidentified man of about 45, 'accompanied by three men at least one of whom was employed in the State Revenue Department, stopped Boyden Underwood, United Press correspondent, near a water fountain on the second floor.

"Say," he said, "come here a minute."

When the correspondent arrived, the man, who was coatless, brought one up from the floor to land on Underwood's jaw.

"Now, damn it, I guess you'll tend to your own business," he said. "Let those stories you have been writing, alone."

When the attacker departed, his left eye bleeding, he said, "I guess you have had enough. Don't write any more of those nepotism stories."

Although a crowd that made the space under the capitol dome look like Boyle's Half-Acre (where Dempsey and Carpentier fought in 1921) on a full night, witnessed the fight, none attempted to stop it.

Bulletins

BOLIVAR, Mo.—(AP)—Sheriff Jack Killingsworth, who was kidnaped Friday by Pretty Boy Floyd, Oklahoma desperado, returned home unharmed Saturday. Floyd and his companion released the sheriff after abandoning their car and stealing another, kidnaping its owner.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture Saturday postponed for this week any announcement of a cotton program calling for a sharp reduction in acreage and levying of the maximum processing tax of 4 cents a pound. The delay is understood to have resulted from a protest filed by Senator Smith of South Carolina, who contended the tax would be unnecessary this year.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The senate special campaign fund investigating committee Saturday set Monday, October 16, for the formal resumption of hearings at New Orleans of its probe into the 1932 Democratic primary election in which Overton, Long's candidate, was victorious.

Today Is Greatest Crisis, Says Atkins

Some Relief Through Community Organization, Says Kiwanian

"We are passing through what may be the greatest crisis that has confronted this nation," W. S. Atkins told members of the Kiwanis club in initiating three new members, "even though we were told the late World war was to make the entire world safe for democracy, with the inference that peace, progress and prosperity would follow."

Mr. Atkins spoke on "Why I Am a Kiwanian."

"Is the world, or is our nation, safe for democracy today?" he asked.

"In former days people lived to themselves more than in this day and age," he said. "But with modern invention and progress none of us may live to ourselves, and would not if we could. Our success as a community, state or nation, or as an individual, is gauged by the time we give to pressing problems, and the co-operation we receive for our fellow man. Kiwania gives a working organization to meet problems that present themselves. Service clubs such as Kiwania are needed to better discharge the duties of citizenship. It is a habit to ask 'What are they going to do about local, state or national problems?' Under our form of government the question should be 'What are we going to

No Vacant Houses as Many Families Come to This City

100 Vacant Dwellings Year Ago—Survey Shows None Today

BUSY WITH REPAIR

20 New Families Among Factors Creating Housing Shortage

Several new families moving into Hope during the past 30 days have filled every available rent home in the city, according to a survey made Saturday by the Star.

No homes or apartments could befound vacant. Four homes are now being repaired and made ready for occupancy within the next few weeks. Five persons have called at The Star office during the last two days inquiring for vacant houses.

"I can't rent them, nor any other vacant house or more desirable vacant houses in Hope a year ago. There are a few more houses which could be repaired and made desirable for rental purposes. If the recent rate of growth of population continues, local real estate men look for either an increase in rentals, or the construction of new homes while building materials are cheap.

Many Hope houses have been rented in recent months for but little more than the annual insurance, and taxes, it is said. Five brick homes of five to six rooms have been known to rent for $13.50 to $15 per month, in one or two of them occupied, so that insurance would not be cancelled.

B. & L. Homes Taken

All of the Hope houses listed with Floyd Porterfield are rented, he says, with the exception of three which are now being repaired. One of these will be ready within the next few days. Mr. Porterfield acts as agent for approximately one hundred houses in Hope which are owned by building and loan or insurance companies. They are all rented now, he says, with the exception of the three being repaired. He is having calls almost daily for furnished apartments and furnished homes. There have been no vacancies of either, he says, in several weeks.

39 New Families

The names of about twenty new families who have moved here in the past month, were secured in The Star's survey. They are as follows:

H. C. Westbrook, formerly of Texarkana, representing in this section the

They Broke Deadlock

The deadlock between President Roosevelt and the veterans' bloc of the senate, which was holding up adjournment of congress, was ironed out by these three administration leaders Thursday, enabling congress to adjourn before daylight Friday morning. Shown after conferring with the president at the White House are: Left to right, Senator James F. Byrnes, chairman of the senate conference committee on the disputed proposal for increased veterans' payments; Senator Joseph T. Robinson, majority leader, and Vice-President John N. Garner.

Georgia Biscuits Are White House Success

ATHENS, Ga.—(NEA)—President Roosevelt and his family have put their okay on Dixie's bread and water. Curiously, both the water and the bread come from Georgia!

The water, of course, is at Warm Springs, Ga., where the President has found pleasure and health in bathing. The bread comes from here. It is beaten biscuits that Mrs. Charles N. Hodgson of this city bakes. She has a standing order of three dozen beaten biscuits weekly for the White House table!

It was during March, while Mrs. Hodgson was walking over her 220-acre dairy farm, that the postman brought her the first order. Where Mrs. Roosevelt first tasted her biscuits she doesn't know, but it probably was in Atlanta.

Besides making excellent beaten biscuits, Mrs. Hodgson runs a huge dairy and was the first to introduce the practice of playing music for the cows, to increase milk production. News reels taken on her Cathedral Pines dairy showing cows being milked to music have been shown all over the United States and abroad.

She is the wife of the late Charles N. Hodgson and the mother of five children. She uses milk in her beaten biscuits and makes all of them herself, "beating them until they pop three times," is her description of the secret of her successful technique.

Recently Mrs. Hodgson received a letter from the White House housekeeper which said, "They (the Roosevelts) all like your biscuits so well that I want to keep them on hand at all times."

The steel span replaced with a concrete bridge on the main river crossing is to be relocated somewhere on the river along the southern boundary of Pike county, to whom the title of the bridge is conveyed.

At a three-county meeting of the judges of Pike, Hempstead and Nevada county, Pike and Hempstead sought to locate the structure at what is known as Bowen's crossing, to create a new traffic route from Hope to Blevins to Delight—but Nevada held out for a location three miles farther east, which was unsatisfactory to the other two counties.

It is proposed to reassemble the bridge with R. F. C. labor of the three counties, on the State Highway Department moving it free of charge from its present location on highway No. 27 to the new river crossing, wherever that may be.

Cotton drifted back onward Thursday's low levels in trading Saturday, New York July contracts closing at 8.56. This was 17 points down from Friday's close, 9.13.

2 Little Missouri Bridges Finished

Iron Span on Nashville-Murfreesboro Road Is Replaced

NASHVILLE—The two largest of the three bridges in the Little Missouri river section of Highway No. 27, between Nashville and Murfreesboro, have been completed and were opened for the use of traffic Sunday, according to the Nashville News. The third bridge will be completed and opened for traffic at an early date, the contractors report.

The structure which have been completed are the river bridge, which replaces a steel span, and a huge reinforced concrete span over a river. The one yet to be completed is east of the river, and is small.

These structures are all of the highest type, being built of concrete and steel, and of the approved width for Class A roads. They are the same class structures which are on the balance of the highway, and the completion of these structures places the entire highway above high water marks, and completes all work on Highway 27 from Kirby to Nashville except final surfacing.

Austin Vs Kent in Repeal Election

Ex-County Superintendent Anti-Repeal—Kent Is Repeal Delegate

The fight for repeal or retention of the 18th amendment by Arkansas July 18 came to Hempstead county Saturday when it was learned that both sides had filed petitions for delegates with County Clerk Arthur Anderson in the courthouse at Washington.

W. H. (John) Kent represents the repealists; and E. E. Austin, the anti-repealists.

Whether other candidates for delegate will appear, is not known. County Clerk Anderson was uncertain whether the usual 30-day limit applied to the special election. The 30-day advance notice for filing would expire Saturday. It is The Star's information through the Associated Press that there is no deadline for the special election, officials at Little Rock having told the A. P. that candidates might file as late as up to the time the ballots are printed, which will be about two weeks before the election.

The anti-repealists' petition appearing Mr. Austin carried 153 signatures.

Agents "Kidnaped" Convict

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—Three federal agents of the justice department of Justice agents who were reported to have "kidnaped" a man in Hot Springs Friday morning, revealed here Friday night that the "kidnaping" victim was Frank Nash, Oklahoma desperado who escaped from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, in September, 1930.

Nash was serving a 25-year term for robbing a mail train in Osage county, Oklahoma, at the time of his escape.

The agents, who sped out of Hot Springs in their car after "abducting" the man known in Hot Springs only as "Doc," left their automobile at the police station here. It was learned that they planned to take a train with their mysterious prisoner in an effort to prevent a possible attempt at rescue.

The agents admitted "kidnaping" Nash in Hot Springs after the fugitive had been trailed there, but refused to give details. They said they feared trouble from Nash's confederates, and wished him out of town as quickly as possible.

The killers fled in one or more automobiles after pouring a murderous fire into a parked car which contained their prisoner were hospitals south of the east door of the station.

The dead:

Frank Nash, convict.

Raymond J. Caffrey, agent in the federal Bureau of Investigation.

Frank Hermanson, Kansas City detective.

W. J. Grooms Kansas City detective.

Otto Reed, chief of police of Alester, Okla.

F. J. Lackey, an agent of the federal Bureau of Investigation, was wounded.

Accounts differed as to the number of men in the killer's party. One eye-witness saw four; another counted by two.

Frank Smith, Department of Justice investigator, Lackey and Caffrey led at Union Station shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday morning with Nash, who had been captured by the other two section of Hot Springs police Friday. They were met by four police officers, and as they were leaving with their prisoner to the waiting car the gangsters opened fire, felling Caffrey and Nash.

The Kidnaping

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—Two men walked into the White Front cigar store on upper Central avenue here today, purchased cigars and turned to leave, drew revolvers and surrounded another man, known only as "Doc" Williams," who was drinking a bottle of 3.2 beer.

Shoving their guns into Williams' stomach, one of the trio said: "Put
